KING FUNG

RESTAURANT

ENJOY YOURSELF TONIGHT

King Fung Restaurant is located in the center of Chinatown, on Elizabeth Street across from the Fifth Police Precinct. It is absolutely safe.

King Fung is in one of the most interesting and exciting areas of New York City and yet once inside you will find an atmosphere of peace and quiet. King Fung is magnificently decorated in traditional Chinese taste.

Famous chefs from Hong Kong have been hired to prepare delicious Cantonese cuisine. First class banquets of all kinds can be arranged. The staff is courteous, well trained and prepared to serve you.

Due to above-mentioned King Fung won the honor of one Star from New York Times, also won the honors of Colette Critique and Gault Millau: one of the best restaurants of New York, in 1988.

King Fung is famous for wedding banquets, birthday parties, graduation parties, Christmas and New Year dinners and celebration of all kinds. You will have a memorable dining experience.

CITY LIGHTS

By Daniel Young

KOB MA: Even with the neon lights, blue canvas seatback covers and modern fixtures that dress up its modest interior, Kob Ma comes across Chinatown nothing more spectacular than a simple, home-style Thai eatery with probably only a dozen or so outstanding dishes. Artlessly presented yet ably manned and prepared appetizers such as chicken satay, spicy basil salad and squid salad (at $4.95) hint that the chef is less concerned with appearance than the decorator. The enter quakes of Kai Tung (fried Cornish hen baked with curry and served with a sweet garlic and chili dip) a $9.95 sensation, pad Thai noodles $6.50 and mixed seafood with red curry sauce ($11.95) with the all but the superficially intended. Though it may push your bill over the $15 per person barrier, do splurge on the seldom obviously done for the Thai-style fried sea bass ($12.95 or $13.95 depending on its size) served over a flatbed as a fan-shaped ching dish filled with boiling chili and coriander accents. Ma, really, it's all the show that Kob Ma needs.
